A SCHOOL WORTH LOOKING INTO

Cleveland County has a population of approximately 86,000. Every quarter about 1200 of these folks register for classes of some description at Cleveland Tech. Students range in age from 16 to 75, and each student comes seeking something different. But Tech is able to meet these needs in a variety of ways. Degree and diploma programs, adult high school classes, Continuing Ed classes—these are a few of Tech's drawing cards. Add to these dramatic and community events held on the campus, and we truly have a school that offers something for everyone—a school worth looking into.

CLEVELAND TECH—
The Heartbeat of Cleveland County

For students with jobs and families, study time must be stolen whenever possible.

Tech students look at the exams in many different ways.

Tagako is probably the only student attending Tech as a means of learning about Southern culture.

HAVING FUN IS A LARGE PART OF TECH'S LIFESTYLE

Getting a head start on education?

Things are looking up, Wilson.

Women's role in the workplace is slowly undergoing change.

Doll collecting is a current craze and Continuing Ed. gets on the bandwagon by offering Porcelain Dollmaking classes. Students for whom dollmaking is a hobby have won awards in regional and state competitions, other students make dolls as a business venture.

Ah! Peace and quiet at last.

Retirement Beckons Anita

After 12½ years of teaching General Education courses at Tech, her favorite of which is Southern Writers and Literature, Anita Wilkie is partially retiring. She originally wanted to travel with her husband, but so far her new-found spare time has been consumed by working around the house and spending time with her grandchildren.

Students who do not have the opportunity to know Anita will miss an enriching experience.

Anita restrains Willie, the "killer goose."

Anita works closely with students.

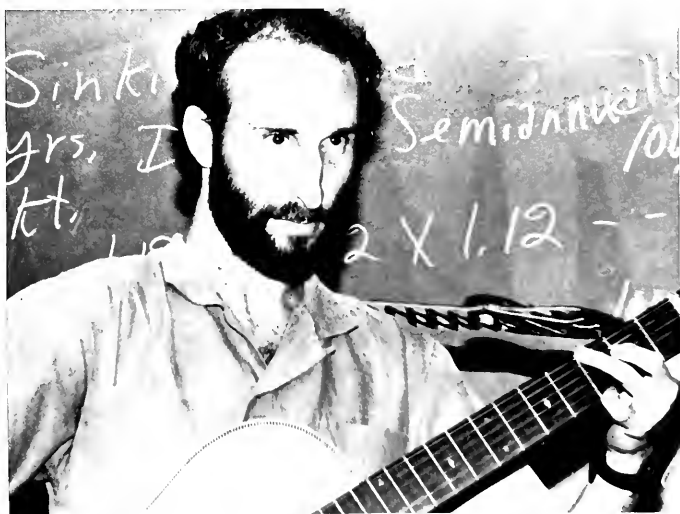

Anita's parting gift, "I Touch the Future," was donated to Tech's library in honor of the entire staff.

Joseph Sobol—Visiting Artist

The Visiting Artist Program, unique to N.C., is intended to bring working artists into communities all over the state. Joseph came to Cleveland Tech in 1985 to share his storytelling, musicmaking, and folklorist talents with Cleveland Countians. From Port Chester, NY, Joseph studied Liberal Arts at Sarah Lawrence College and did his graduate work at Carolina. He shares his love of people and their history with groups all over our community—church groups, school children, civic organizations—wherever we gather to listen and be entertained. For Joseph, the best part of being a Visiting Artist is the chance to work at his craft before those eager to hear him and to experience the creative freedom so crucial to the artist.

School children enjoy Joseph's animated storytelling style.

Music helps Joseph's stories spring to life.

Local musicians perform with Joseph at Gardner Webb College.

Governor's Award Won

Governor Martin congratulates President Petty on the award.

Cleveland Tech's revival of "Heaven Bound", a 1930's vintage allegory, won the school the 1985 Governor's Business Award. More than 30 Tech faculty and 60 students were involved in the project, with more than 25 businesses providing financial and logistical support. The award was made by the Governor's Council on Arts & Humanities.

Small Business Administration

The Center offers a variety of technical and managerial assistance to small businesses.

Services range from seminars to direct assistance to upgrading and retraining programs for a variety of employees.

Recent changes in tax laws have drawn small business owners to workshops.

The Small Business Center network involves all levels of businesses and civic leaders and organizations in the community in an effort to provide information to the more than 126,900 small businesses in N.C.

Billie's familiar face is one students and faculty can depend upon.

Shirley Rodriguez provides invaluable technical assistance to students doing research in the library.

Campus Mainstays

Instructors count on Danny Dedmond to get materials printed.

Pat's dedication sometimes means eating at her desk.

Dorothy Surrat takes a break from daily maintenance duties.

Nancy Carpenter's cheerful attitude keeps Continuing Ed moving.

Keeping Tech Running Smoothly

Marjorie fills orders with a smile.

Tommy Greene lectures on one of his favorite subjects—Accounting.

Louise Hamrick keeps textbooks ordered and organized.

Cobern and Becky are caught in the act of sharing a juicy tidbit of gossip.

Myra Morrison is a classy lady who doesn't mind keeping her floor "fashionably" clean.

Sr. Citizens' groups meet regularly on Tech's campus.

Woods, Wright, & Dee display their works of art in the Gallery.

CLEVELAND TECHNICAL COLLEGE

1986 - 87

Director

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges are selected by a committee of faculty and administrators. These nominees are second year students enrolled in a two-year program; in addition, they have exhibited superior academic achievement and are active in both extracurricular and community activities. Cleveland Tech has 41 nominees for the academic year 1986-87. We congratulate these students on being selected to receive this high honor.

HEALTH CAREERS

Practical Nursing students get a variety of hands-on training as they work toward a vocational diploma.

With the current shortage of trained nursing personnel, Licensed Practical Nurses have numerous employment opportunities, including positions in nursing homes, clinics, and public health facilities.

The Radiologic Technology curriculum, an Associate Degree program, prepares graduates to be competent Medical Radiographers.

Radiologic Technology graduates may be employed in hospitals, clinics, physicians' offices, or in fields of research.

GENERAL STUDIES

Passing Mr. McBride's Physics class is no easy task.

Modern Dance provides instruction in both theory and technique.

Communications Technology provides opportunity for work in areas such as libraries, media centers, and industrial education departments.

Hal Bryant's art classes are a popular elective.

SECRETARIAL/FASHION

Fashion students learn to manipulate more than clothing.

Designing eye-catching displays is vitally important in fashion merchandising.

Executive Secretarial, General Office Technology, and Medical Secretarial curriculums develop professional skills and open the door to a variety of occupational choices.

Fashion Merchandising and Marketing students are prepared to enter jobs such as sales, advertising or display assistants, and executive trainees.

BUSINESS CAREERS

Business Computer Programming prepares students for entry level positions as programmers or operators.

As business opportunities in N.C. increase, employment possibilities for Business Administration graduates increase as well.

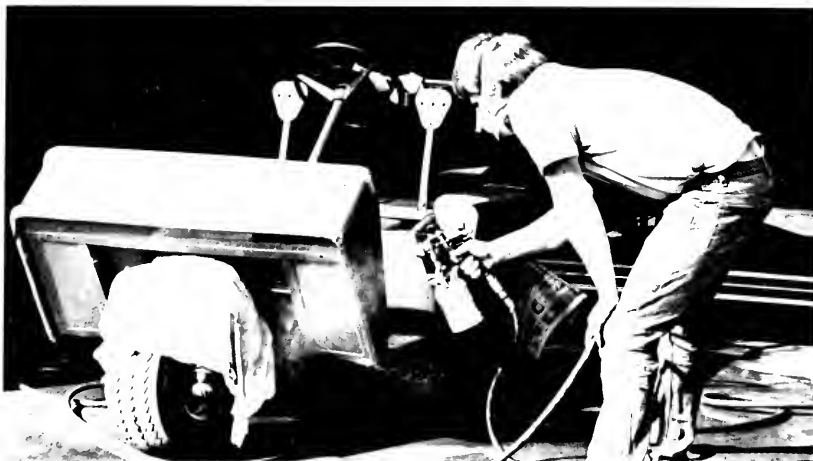

Computer Programming
students who gain on-the-job experience and seek additional education may enter jobs such as data processing manager, systems analyst, and systems manager.

The Accounting profession is important to the entire spectrum of business fields, offering varied employment opportunities.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Electronics Engineering combines theory with practical applications.

Auto Body Repair classes are as similar to actual on-the-job work as possible.

Emphasis is placed on mechanical parts and operation of various automobile units in Auto Mechanics.

Electronics students can choose between a two-year degree and several one-year diplomas.

The field of welding offers continuous future employment.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

Students bring in their own furniture to learn Upholstery skills.

With the country look so prevalent in decorating, Woodworking classes are especially popular.

Linda Putnam's Oil Painting class helps students discover and refine artistic talents.

Ceramics students benefit from Ada Blankenship's expertise.

LAB LEARNING

Mike Schwartz instructs in fingerprinting techniques.

Learning Lab students work toward high school diplomas.

Students often come to the Learning Lab to work on high school credits after raising their families.

Criminal Justice students, working on 2-year degrees, investigate a crime-scene lab.

With N.C.'s stricter drunk driving laws, law enforcement personnel must be proficient in administering breathalyzer tests.

WORTH LOOKING INTO . . .

Cleveland Tech students are representative of the county's diverse population. They come to the college for a variety of reasons, and they leave with a variety of skills: There's the middle-aged man courageously completing his high-school education; the young man and woman seeking marketable job skills that will help secure their futures; the middle-aged homemaker intent on personal growth, oblivious to the "empty nest" syndrome; and the retiree determined to remain productive. All of these draw upon the resources of the school, and return to our community a portion of what they have gained. That the college offers something for everyone is the tie between the two that provides continued growth for both.
